Our mission is to help the people of the Uniting Church connect with our overseas partner churches. We support our partners as they minister among people and address difficult issues in their local communities. As we foster relationships between people in Australia and across the world, we see lives mutually transformed.

CHURCH CONNECTIONS

MESSAGE FROM OUR CHAIR

UnitingWorld continues to make a difference in the world as we work with our partners. More than forty partners attended the triennial Assembly of the Uniting Church in Australia held in Perth in July 2015. They had time together as well as opportunities to share their stories and experiences with members of the Assembly. Many of us were deeply moved by the joint statement that our partners prepared and read to the whole Assembly committing themselves to support the Uniting Church in Australia and to work more closely with each other through the sharing of resources and learning together. Following the Assembly, UnitingWorld has been able to assist our partners give concrete expression to their noble words by hosting a number of gatherings of our partners and also facilitating the exchange of people between our partner churches. This is an exciting new role that we, as the Uniting Church, can play in support of our partners to advance the mission of God in the world.

There is much to celebrate in our overseas partnerships and much to learn from our partners. For example, as the Uniting Church we are learning from our sisters and brothers in China about being a church at the margin.

It is great that we work in partnership with other parts of the Uniting Church, for example with UnitingCare in training in social service provision in China.

UnitingWorld has projects in countries from Africa to the Pacific islands and across Asia. In some cases there is a significant theological component to what we do, for example, in work on changing attitudes to violence against women in the Pacific or in approaching the theological implications of climate change for Pacific islanders whose land is threatened by sea level rise.

We are very fortunate that we have such committed and dedicated staff who work with our partners. Our role as a National Committee is to support this great team with good governance and financial oversight. And we could not work without our faithful supporters who pray for us, who promote our activities within the church and provide much needed funds. We look forward to the future and to the unfolding relationships that are at the heart of all we do.

Dr Andrew Glenn

MESSAGE FROM OUR DIRECTOR

The last year has been an exciting one for UnitingWorld Church Connections as we have consolidated our programs and deepened our engagement with overseas partners.

In the Pacific we have launched a new program in partnership with the Pacific Conference of Churches called "Navigating the Tides".

This program helps our partners to educate their people about climate change, its causes and impacts, and giving these strongly Christian communities a language and resources to address this important issue.

Building on the call of our overseas partners to work more closely with UnitingWorld and with each other, UnitingWorld opened a small office in Bali, Indonesia in early 2016. Working with our local partner Maha Bhoga Marga, the office will allow us to better serve our partners in South East Asia, assisting our near neighbouring partners to share with and learn from each other, to develop stronger programs and to implement, monitor and evaluate our work more thoroughly and effectively.

The year has also seen us reach out to our partner in South Sudan, the Presbyterian Church of South Sudan, to assist them as they work for peace in their conflict-torn land. I continue to be deeply moved by the stories of commitment and self-sacrifice that our partners are making to bring about lasting change in their country.

Finally, our Experience volunteer program and InSolidarity partner visit program continue to provide opportunities for members of the Uniting Church to experience the life, culture and faith of our overseas partner churches. I am so thankful that such an experience, almost 20 years ago, shaped and changed my life and it is wonderful to see those same impacts in the lives of others today.

Thank you to all our supporters for the generosity you show to our partners and the work we undertake with them on your behalf. Your support continues to allow us to stand alongside and share in God's mission with some of the most vibrant Christian communities in the world. Thank you for your partnership with us in this truly important work.

2015/16 SNAPSHOT

Church Connections carries out the Uniting Church in Australia's commitment to growing global relationships through partnership. We work to connect the people of the Uniting Church in Australia with our partners overseas. We believe that at the core of all we do, there must be the desire to build lasting relationships. As we develop global relationships, through visiting, working together, sharing resources and stories of faith, we can learn much about resilience and the work of God's spirit.

EQUIPPING CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP

The past year has seen UnitingWorld continue to be involved in developing and resourcing ministers and lay leaders for ministry. There has been a particular emphasis on supporting women to become influential leaders in their communities. Across Asia, the Pacific and Africa, UnitingWorld is offering support to our partners as they continue to be leaders in their own communities.

CHINA • EXPRESSING FAITH THROUGH CARING FOR THE ELDERLY

China has an ageing population, with 200 million people over 60. It is important that the church seek further ways to support and engage with this more vulnerable group in society.

UnitingCare in Australia has extensive experience in providing aged care services. UnitingWorld has formed a unique partnership with UnitingCare and the China Christian Council to help support the church to increase their skills and leadership capacity in aged care services. Through this partnership, the church is beginning to express a newfound social engagement by involvement in aged care services.

In May this year an expert team of Aged Care specialists visited China to deliver a conference. As well as providing training and new skills to aged care managers, the UnitingCare partnership is helping to connect social services to personal faith. This partnership has also given UnitingCare the opportunity to broaden its vision of how to serve, beyond direct service provision.

The involvement of UnitingCare also allows the church in China to witness to the Chinese Government as to what the church is capable of achieving to the mutual benefit of both the Government and local communities.

This three way partnership is a meaningful way of sharing skills, knowledge and mutual learning. Rev Dr Ji Zhang from UnitingWorld says, "On this journey we have seen the work of the Spirit. The Church has been, and is, working hard – to capture the Spirit of life, by which the people of God have been captured".

CHINA • IT HAS WORKED

In a small rural town in China, a group of elderly people waited with anticipation at their age care facility for a visit from UnitingCare staff. The Australian's coming to visit were seen as friends since this would be their third visit and when they arrived they were greeted warmly by the residents. As soon as the visitors walked in the room, they were hurried away by the female staff. A resident had been very sick and the staff were keen to talk to their Australian friends about what they had done to help her. When the group of women came out of the room the local staff declared, "It has worked. She is completely healed!" Not long ago, when the local staff had no medical training the wound had been deeply infected and the patient had been in a lot of pain. With the help of UnitingCare staff in Brisbane, local staff had been using a social media platform, WeChat to learn the skills to treat the wound. "With the skills we now have," said the local staff, "we have learnt how to clean the wound and frequently change her position. Her body has healed itself!"

PACIFIC • WOMEN MINISTERS BRING A CHALLENGE

Mae* is one of only two female students studying at a Pacific theological college. In the Pacific 90% of the population identify with Christianity. The Church is highly respected and deeply influential. Mae believes it is time for women to claim full equality with men and that the church is at the heart of this change becoming a reality.

"We have always been part of a patriarchal system," she tells us. "It is a challenge for us as women here in the college. But I try to make men see that women are a very important part of the community – men won't be whole without us."

For Mae and other Pacific women, the foundation of gender identity lies in the Scriptures. "I'm glad there is a lot in the Scriptures that talks about how women are equal, to be valued and make a difference," Mae says. "When it starts from ministers, this will make a big difference in society."

Mae has faith that leadership from the church can be a powerful agent of change. Many across the Pacific have recognised that ideas of 'women's rights' are often not understood in cultures where both faith and patriarchy have been so dominant. People like Mae believe that change can happen through the involvement of the church.

"When we women become respected in society for what we are, the men will have a change of mindset about women and girls," says Mae.

SOUTH SUDAN • LIVING PEACE

It has been a year since Rev Michael Aban Obat returned to South Sudan. When he fled in 2013, the Presbyterian Church lost all their buildings, including the theological college which was burnt to the ground. Their leaders were scattered across the border or in IDP camps. Michael returned, knowing in his heart that his country needed the church to lead it to peace. The church needed to regather strong Christian leaders.

“Our country needs men and women of God to teach them the ways of peace and to care for their pain,” says Michael. “We will face the suffering we have experienced and help others to face it too.” Michael managed to salvage some books from the burnt out library and he and a friend found an abandoned bakery where they could start teaching theology with 5 students. Now with 20 students, the new Nile Theological College is Michael’s hope for meeting the church’s need for leaders.

“I managed to escape, leaving my country like so many thousands who fled across the borders and filled the camps in neighbouring countries,” Rev Michael recalls. “We were all hungry, all exhausted, but none of us understood how much fear and violence had come to live in our minds... I was one of the lucky ones. I had counselling in Cairo for the trauma of those days. It made all the difference. I found hope again, I found my God gave me strength again.”

“This is what my people need – they need healing from the terrible wounds of war. They need to hear God’s Word of hope and peace. They need to be taught to live peace, to breathe it – commit to it, work for it. That is why I came back – because my church has work to do.”

Brave men and women, like Rev Aban Obat, have begun rebuilding God’s Church in South Sudan. They are weaving peace person to person – offering trauma counselling and practical help, listening to and encouraging people of different tribal groups to spend time together, creating bonds that will not allow them to turn on one another in the future. They speak truth to power, not taking sides and helping hold their government to account. They dream of rebuilding their schools and hospitals, helping their children grow strong and free.

UnitingWorld is strongly committed to our partnership with the church in South Sudan. We have committed to supporting our partner by funding basic needs such as petrol, food and accommodation for church leaders to travel to areas where they are needed, to fund training for new Christian leaders to take the place of those killed and displaced during the war and to support the trauma counselling the church is carrying out.

PACIFIC • LEADERSHIP IN A CHANGING CLIMATE

In the last two years Tonga, Vanuatu, Fiji and Samoa have experienced destructive category 4 and 5 cyclones. The effects of El Nino are being experienced in the highlands of PNG, Vanuatu and Fiji where many die of famine. Climate change is now a part of everyday life in the Pacific.

For some, the scale of the challenge can trigger an emotional, psychological shut-down. Pacific Churches are awakening to the challenge of leading their people through the troubled waters of climate change.

The church is a critical agent of change in the Pacific – and an active and engaged faith is vital to meeting the challenges of climate change. Churches also need leadership that can offer pastoral support, trauma counselling and practical activities to support their communities in responding to climate change impact.

UnitingWorld's 'Leadership in a Changing Climate' program is supporting our Pacific partners in multiple ways. We are helping provide training to key leaders in churches throughout the Pacific so that they can lead their communities in theological teaching, disaster chaplaincy and practical responses. The program is also mobilising communities in Australia to climate change advocacy.

MINISTRY IN THE MARGINS

Through the past year UnitingWorld has continued to support our partner churches as they minister to, care and advocate for the most vulnerable in their communities. We believe it is part of our mission to reach out to those who struggle with every day survival and to stand in solidarity with those whose faith or livelihoods are being challenged.

EAST TIMOR • CHANGE THROUGH PARTNERSHIP

Four years ago, Glebe Road Uniting Church (UC) in Queensland began to build a friendship with the people from Ekaristi Church in Dili. Now, a genuine and lasting partnership has been formed. The Ekaristi Congregation ministers to poor local communities by providing low fee education through their primary school. Through UnitingWorld, Glebe Road UC is helping to fundraise for the school.

Noela Rothery, one of the project leaders from Glebe Road UC says, "The congregation has begun to own this simple yet profound difference between charity and partnership. It is not centred on "what we can do" but rather what we can be..."

Another member of the working group in Australia, David Hunter says, "It is God who is connecting us with the people there. The working group is building a cross-cultural bridge between Australia and East Timor, through real human relationship...building a school is the result of this growing relationship and an expression of this community-to-community connection."

The money raised by Glebe Road UC has helped Ekaristi church and local community to build two classrooms. The school currently teaches 578 students. The building of extra classrooms means that affordable education has been offered to 90 extra students. This relationship has also seen the sharing of skills and knowledge through visits to East Timor by Glebe Road UC members and visits to Australia by teachers from the school. The relationship between the two communities has extended in Australia to involve local community organisations and schools in the fundraising efforts.

GROWING GLOBAL RELATIONSHIPS

UnitingWorld is committed to connecting communities. One way this can happen is through experiencing the lives of our partners first hand. Our Experience Program enables volunteers to live, work and make a real difference alongside our overseas partner church communities. Volunteers connect to and collaborate with people across the globe to share their knowledge and experience to learn, build capacity and share in the mission of God.

ASIA • NEW UNITINGWORLD OFFICE OPENS

2016 has seen UnitingWorld respond in an exciting way to the call of our partners in South East Asia for more regional interaction and cooperation. As a result of our deep engagement in the region and to further support multi-lateral collaboration between our partners, UnitingWorld has opened a small office in Indonesia.

In May this year our new South East Asia Regional Office opened in Denpasar, Bali with two local staff. Our partner in Bali, Gereja Kristen Protestan di Bali (GKPB), Maha Bhoga Marga Foundation (MBM)) kindly host this office on their premises.

These staff members and the new UnitingWorld office, will provide a greater level of support to our projects in South East Asia, and strive to bring our different partners in the region together.

The first ever South East Asian Regional Partner Conference was held at the office in May. All of our regional partners were invited to attend, and share with each other their missions, ministry and challenges, and to work with UnitingWorld in setting directions and priorities for the new office. To be a part of different areas of the worldwide church coming together to serve its people is a great gift.

AUSTRALIA • ENGAGING AUSTRALIAN COMMUNITIES

Through growing engagement and support UnitingWorld is empowering Australian communities and people within the Uniting Church especially, to be engaged with our partners overseas through financial support, prayer, volunteering and advocacy. Through building relationships and facilitating opportunities for learning we hope to encourage people to think about how they can respond as people of faith to our partners overseas and the communities in which they work.

PARTNERSHIP AT ASSEMBLY 2015

The Uniting Church in Australia's Triennial Assembly in July 2015 showed the breadth and depth of the relationships we have with our partner churches. In gathering our partners and nurturing conversations between each other and with the UCA, we heard two clear messages. Our partners truly value UnitingWorld's ability to connect them with each other, and they see enormous value in shared learning and collaboration with each other. And our partners are delighted to engage with the Uniting Church in Australia, working with us to grow in our own ministry, sharing their knowledge and wisdom with us.

At the Assembly, 17 of our overseas church partners signed a statement pledging to work in respectful, reciprocal relationship, together addressing the needs of their churches and communities.

By working together, both our partners and our own Uniting Church have the chance to create new networks, sharing our expertise and building up our Christian witness and mission. We are both better equipped to share the message of God's love for all people and address the crucial issues our world is facing. Our partnerships are our unique strength, defining our work and setting us apart.

During the Assembly time, our partners were warmly welcomed by Assembly members as well as local congregations. There were many opportunities for stories to be shared and support to be given. Panels were held with partner church representatives speaking on three topics:

- The Church in times of conflict
- The Church in times of change
- The Church in times of growth

As well as hosting partner churches, UnitingWorld brought two resolutions before the Assembly, in relation to foreign aid and collaboration with UnitingCare in our partnership with the China Christian Council. Both resolutions were unanimously approved. The highlight of the Assembly for UnitingWorld was certainly the opportunity to host 35 overseas visitors. Coming from Zimbabwe, India, Philippines, Taiwan, China, Indonesia, Timor Leste, Japan, PNG, Vanuatu, Fiji and Kiribati, they were a great physical representation of the partnerships the Uniting Church has and that UnitingWorld holds on the UCA's behalf.

Statement by Partner Churches to the 14th Triennial Assembly of the Uniting Church in Australia

“After they prayed, the place where they were meeting was shaken. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke the word of God boldly. All the believers were one in heart and mind. No one claimed that any of their possessions was their own, but they shared everything they had. With great power the apostles continued to testify to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. And God’s grace was so powerfully at work in them all that there were no needy persons among them. For from time to time those who owned land or houses sold them, brought the money from the sales and put it at the apostles’ feet, and it was distributed to anyone who had need.” Acts 4: 31-35 (Read at UCA 14th Assembly Opening Worship and Installation of President, 12th July, 2015)

We, representatives of sister churches from Africa, Asia and the Pacific, who are partners in mission with the Uniting Church of Australia; gathered here in this place and at this time, for worship, fellowship and partnership, during the 14th Assembly of the Uniting Church in Australia; following deep sharing with our mission partner, Uniting World and with each other on the common concerns and possibilities in the task of doing mission in the 21st century context:

- Acknowledge the first people and traditional owners of the land for their spirit of hospitality, and the whole Uniting Church in Australia for their loving kindness to us as sisters and brothers in Christ;

- Express our deep appreciation for the Uniting Church in Australia's support, through Uniting World, in addressing the needs of our Churches and our various communities through their work in human rights and justice, capacity building, gender issues and child protection, climate change, communication, reconciliation and social and economic empowerment;
- Acknowledge the changing dynamics of mission in the context of the 21st century, and the need for mission to balance the Great Commission to "go make disciples," with the Great Commandment, to "love your neighbour."

Through consensus we:

- Affirm that partnership in mission is a gift of God to willingly and passionately enter into a deep relationship of mutual sharing in fulfilment of the commandment of God to love one another as parts of the same body of Jesus Christ;
- Acknowledge that partnership obligations invite us to journey together in friendship, creating respectful and reciprocal relationships of trust and honest dialogue that hold us accountable to each other;
- Commit to strengthening our partnership with the Uniting Church in Australia through Uniting World as equals by offering our resources to enhance her mission in the world.

Inspired by the 14th Assembly, we discussed the need for us as partners with the Uniting Church to manifest the spirit of unity for which our host community of faith strives. With our “hearts on fire”, we:

- Affirm that our partnership with the Uniting Church in Australia, challenges us to break through the boundaries of denomination, in order to partner as God's agents of transformation in this world;
- Commit to develop, nurture and strengthen multilateral mission relationships by making our God-given resources available to one another, sharing our needs, joys, sorrows, achievements and challenges with openness and joyfully participating in the life of our partners in a fruitful and effective manner.

To God be the glory now and forever.

FINANCIAL OVERVIEW

The Financial Year ended June 2016 saw Church Connections raise $1.6M from our donors which comprised 71% of operating revenue for the year, up from 58% in the previous year. These funds included donations from Australian individuals, congregations and groups and also included funds from donors who left gifts in their wills totalling $1.04M. Investment income for the period was $0.37M, a decline from the previous year, largely due to falling interest rates and the weaker performance of the share market during the year.

Program expenditure was $1.38M or 65% of total expenditure for 2016. This expenditure is made up of grants to overseas projects ($0.66M), partner relationships and support costs including our volunteer program ($0.59) million and community education in Australia ($0.13M).

Our heartfelt thanks to all our supporters for their continued support and generosity. We remain committed to our focus of building a strong, financially sustainable organisation with a view to sustainability and growth in the future. We will invest in fund raising activities in 2016/17 with the aim of growing our revenue and thereby the organisational capacity to better serve our partner churches and their communities with whom we work.
